

27 KNOWN KILLED IN STORMS ALONG WESTERN COAST

5,000 Homeless, Great Property Damage is Now Indicated

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
CALIFORNIA—Southern part of state flooded as the result of four days of unprecedented rain and snow. Five thousand persons homeless after fleeing from highwater in Venice, Long Beach, Anaheim, Fullerton, Los Angeles, San Diego and smaller towns near the southern metropolises.

Death list reached 21 as toll in snow slides near Fresno was swelled to 13.

Property damage untold; $1,000,000 damage to bridges in Los Angeles alone; total probably will reach several millions.

Nearly 100 oil derricks blown down at Taft.

Nearly every railroad and highway in flood district blocked. Limited train service started from Los Angeles east.

San Diego almost completely isolated with high water threatening for time the residential district and marine base.

Flood conditions prevailed in at least 20 cities.

UTAH—Three dead, five injured as snow slides strike northern state mining camps, crippling traffic facilities.

Heavy damage to highways in southern Utah following cloudbursts.

Weather bureau bulletins forecast continued unsettled conditions as part of severe storm sweeping the Pacific coast.

ARIZONA—Many streams at flood stage. Highways and railroad tracks undermined.

Prescott reported virtually isolated due to weakened railroad trestles and flooded highways.

BULLETIN

Denver, Colo., Feb. 17—(AP)—Three persons were dead, several injured and damage to highways and buildings was reported today following heavy snow and rain storms in the Rocky Mountain states.

The three dead were victims of separate snow slides which swept mining communities near Price, Utah, yesterday. The slides occurred on both sides of Indian Summit, blocking all traffic into the Utah basin.

San Francisco, Calif., Feb. 17—(AP)—Despite the confusion and roar of high water, flood-stricken Southern California today turned to the growing toll of death and destruction as the result of the worst storm in its history, while thousands of its beleaguered citizens sought refuge from a menace still unabated.

With the known death toll standing at 21, property losses from rain, snow and wind which has beset the southland with unprecedented violence for four days probably will total several million dollars.

Twenty cities affected. A survey last night indicated that reports received from limited lines of communication, showed twenty cities had been partly or wholly deluged. Damage to bridges alone in Los Angeles was estimated at $1,000,000.

Meanwhile, San Diego remained in imminent danger of a catastrophic flood and the marine base there was reported in danger from steadily rising waters. Plans were made to dynamite a Santa Fe Railroad bridge there to lessen the danger, because the structure was being held back by the rising water.

No estimate of the San Diego losses could be made early today.

Oil Derricks Wrecked.
A survey of damage at Taft, which is out of the southern flood area, where a windstorm typhoid over nearly 100 oil derricks, indicated the loss there would run to $250,000 or more. San Francisco shippers claimed a loss of $100,000 due to the weather.

Untold damage was caused to crops, orchards, highways and homes in the San Fernando Valley, where several towns were inundated.

The death toll in the snowslide in the mountains above Fresno reached thirteen last night when the coroner's reports had been checked. Two avalanche struck a camp of the southern California Edison Company there, causing the greatest tragedy of the storm. Twenty four persons caught in the slide still are in hospitals, many of them seriously injured.

Committee Seeks Peace in Threatened Mine War

Miami, Fla., Feb. 17—(AP)—With instructions from the joint wage conference to seek a common ground between conflicting proposals for a new wage agreement in the central competitive field, a sub-committee of competitive field coal operators and United Mine Workers of America met behind closed doors here today. Both sides apparently were steadfast in their demands, the operators insisting that no agreement can be reached on the basis of the Jacksonville contract and the miners, fearing they cannot win a competitive scale as embodied in the operators' demands.

ADDITIONAL U. S. FORCES ORDERED TO CEN. AMERICA

Concern for Safety of Americans in Nicaragua is Cause

Washington, Feb. 17—Concern for the safety of American lives and property because of the recently increased outbreaks in the Nicaraguan civil war evidently has prompted augmentation of U. S. naval forces in the Central American republic. The additional forces included a company of 200 marines and a division of six airplanes, marking the dispatch of the first time. Both units were ordered from San Diego to Corinto and will start as soon as the airplanes are made ready for shipment.

While the Washington government is hopeful that the recent conference between Rear Admiral Latimer in charge of the special service squadron in Nicaraguan waters and Dr. Juan Sacasa, liberal leader, may inaugurate a peaceful solution of the civil warfare it feels further precautionary steps are necessary.

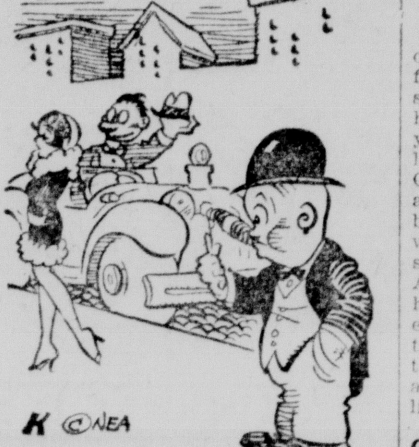

General Railway Strike is Imminent in Mexico

Mexico City, Feb. 17—(AP)—A general railway strike again appears imminent in Mexico. Midnight tonight is the time set for a walkout.

A conference between the railroad men and the national railway lines called by the department of industry to find a solution of the differences between the men and the company, failed to materialize, and the railroad workers demanded a discussion of the round house workers strike which brought the origin of the present conflict.

Chicago People Hurt in Accident Near Nachusa

A Buick coach, owned and driven by Isadora Wolf of Chicago, in which she and three women were returning to Chicago from Iowa, was badly damaged yesterday afternoon about three miles east of the Nachusa corner on the Lincoln Highway. The car was not traveling at a high rate of speed, according to witnesses to the accident but in attempting to pass another machine, the wheels were driven off the paving onto the shoulder.

The soft earth struck the wheels of the car skidding and the machine turned completely over, alighting on its wheels. Wolf was cut about the nose and the women were bruised and generally shaken up. All were brought to Dixon, where they were given medical attention and returned to Chicago last evening. The car was hauled to a local garage to undergo numerous repairs.

Wreck of NorthWestern-U. P. Train in West

An epidemic of severe storms, including torrential rains, blizzards, tornadoes and snow slides, caused a death toll of more than 20 persons in the western part of the United States on Tuesday, Feb. 15. This telephoto picture shows the coaches of the crack NorthWestern-United Pacific train, the Los Angeles Limited, lying in the swollen waters of Puente creek, near Whittier, Calif. The train plunged through a trestle which had been weakened by the flood waters. Two persons were killed and many injured. The picture, taken by flashlight a short time after the wreck by NEA Service photographers, shows a rescue crew standing in the waters of the creek, ready to help the injured passengers off the train. In the upper part of the picture can be seen part of the bridge which did not collapse.

"LON" HUBBARD'S BODY FOUND IN HIS AUTO TODAY

Had Fired Shot Through Head While Seated
Behind the Wheel

Shanghai, Feb. 17—(AP)—Hangchow, regarded as the gateway to Shanghai, was believed tonight to have fallen into the hands of the Cantonese invaders. The troops of Marshal Sun Chuan Fang, ruler of the province of Kiangsu, of which Hangchow is the chief city, were reported evacuating Hangchow after their defeat by the Cantonese.

Fighting was taking place in the outskirts of Hangchow, city of 800,000 population as early as last night, said a foreigner who arrived here by train. The soldiers of Sun were full in the city, and the Cantonese forces were reported to have been in the city for some time.

Not Confirmed.

Ill health existing in his family and financial difficulties are believed to have caused the former contractor to take his life, as was indicated by letters and papers which were found in his pockets. In a new note book was found what is believed to have been his last message to his family and friends which read:

"Bill—try and be guardian over my kiddies, God bless them."
This note is believed to have been addressed to William Short of this city, whom the deceased was well acquainted.

Mr. Hubbard, as he was more familiarly known, was born in Palmyra township August 13, 1867 and had lived in the vicinity of Dixon practically all of his life. A few years ago he was a partner of Pat Duffy in the building of hard roads in Dixon and vicinity. His wife preceded him in death several months ago and one daughter is said to be suffering from pneumonia at the present time.

The funeral arrangements will not be announced until the closing of the inquest tomorrow.

Optometrists Conduct
Free Clinic on Eyes
The first free baby eye clinic ever held in the United States in babies, was held in Chicago February 15th, at the LaSalle Hotel here in the Illinois State Society of optometrists, during their 19th annual convention.

According to Dr. Geo. McGraham one of the staff of examining optometrists, it was productive of unusually worthwhile results.

Crossed eyes in babies usually are due to far sightedness, or under-developed eyeballs at birth.

Mothers having suspected some irregularity of her child's eyes, through the careful examination given by the attending optometrists, were assured of the exact condition of the child's eyes, and advised as to safeguards necessary.

Optometry has revolutionized itself during the last five years by newer and more scientific methods of examination and is fast becoming one of the leading professions.

SMITH UNABLE TO RETURN TO DEMAND RIGHTS

Sickness Keeps Senator-Designate Home from Capital

Washington, Feb. 17—(AP)—Any hope that Frank L. Smith of Illinois will be seated in the senate at this session of congress disappeared today when the election committee was advised by his counsel that illness would prevent the senator designate from coming before the committee.

The short term for which Smith was appointed by Gov. Small expires March 4. The committee previously had decided not to seat him pending hearings on his campaign expenditures, at which he was requested to be present. The hearings were to have begun today but Smith's attorney, C. J. Doyle, asked for indefinite postponement.

"Col. Smith is a very sick man," Doyle told the committee. "We had hoped he would be present today, but his physicians will not permit him to leave his home."

With Smith's credentials for the short term left to die a natural death on March 4, the fight to seat him will hinge henceforth on his certificate of election for the long term ending August 1.

That issue will not become a point of decision until the new congress assembles next December, although for a split second today the Illinois man's election certificate along with that of William S. Vare of Pennsylvania, whose election also was requested, stood approved by the committee.

The committee clerk had included these two certificates in a batch of others about which there is no contest, and the committee approved the whole lot without examining them.

When newspaper correspondents found the converted certificates in the lot there were loud protests from senators. The two certificates quickly were withdrawn for future consideration.

BELIEVE FARMER DROVE AUTO INTO RIVER; RAN AWAY

LaSalle Man Thought to Have Been in Financial Difficulties

(Telegraph Special Service)
LaSalle, Ill., Feb. 17—Belief that a farmer who was believed to have been in financial difficulties, had headed his Ford sedan into the Illinois river near here Tuesday night, to make it appear he had met accidental death, and then had departed for parts unknown, was expressed today after persistent dragging of the river failed to recover his body.

The Ford sedan, owned by Mr. Maas was discovered some time after it had taken the plunge from the roadway. At the time of its discovery, the machine was partially submerged, but the door was open and the glass in the door smashed.

Maas, a farmer residing south of Tonia, had left his home about 7 o'clock Tuesday evening. His mother said that was the last she saw of her son, but traced him to the home of his sister-in-law, Mrs. Richard Holtz, LaSalle.

There, Mrs. Holtz said, Maas had taken a suitcase with clothes, which he intended to bring to St. Margaret's hospital in Springfield, where his wife is a patient.

The office at the hospital reported that Maas had arrived at the Valley institution about 9 o'clock, had visited with his wife for about 15 minutes and then had departed. That was the last seen of him until his machine was discovered later Tuesday evening.

Confesses Murder After Attending Victim's Funeral

Waverly, Iowa, Feb. 17—(AP)—Less than a week after the slaying of Frank A. McCaffree, officers were today preparing to file murder charges against Frank Fortney, who last night signed a confession after returning from the funeral of his victim.

Clemency for a jealous husband who had attacked the supposed lover of his wife, is expected to be the defense plea of Fortney's attorneys. Fortney maintained the killing was not premeditated.

The confession was written early yesterday when Fortney broke down after twelve hours of questioning.

McCaffree, 35, was shot and killed by his wife on his farm for several years after the Fortney's left the farm recently they had separated. Fortney had accused McCaffree of breaking up his home.

VOTE TODAY AIM OF McNARY BILL HOUSE ADVOCATES

If Unsuccessful They'll
Try to Get Action
Tomorrow P. M.

Washington, Feb. 17—(AP)—Rushing towards a final vote on the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill, the house today rejected in rapid order the Aswell and Curtis-Crisp measures which were offered as substitutes.

The vote against the Aswell bill was 160 to 144 while that against the Curtis-Crisp measure was 177 to 156. Neither measure called for a roll call vote, as bills can be offered later as substitutes although friends of the McNary-Haugen bill professed to see in today's test the tokens of the victory which they claim.

BULLETIN
Washington, Feb. 17—(AP)—The house today refused to substitute the Aswell farm relief bill for the McNary-Haugen measure. The vote against substitution was 160 to 144.

Although a second vote on the Aswell bill may come later, today's action narrowed the fight more closely between the Curtis-Crisp bill and the McNary-Haugen measure and gave the first preliminary test of strength as between the two bills.

There was no record vote. Representative Crisp, democrat, Georgia, next moved substitution of the bill bearing his name.

There was no record vote. Representative Crisp, democrat, Georgia, next moved substitution of the bill bearing his name.

BULLETIN
Washington, Feb. 17—(AP)—Advocates of the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill will attempt to force a vote later today, and if their move is unsuccessful they believe the final roll call on the measure will be taken not later than tomorrow.

Chairman Haugen of the agriculture committee, in charge of the bill, said that while there had been numerous requests by house members for time to air their views, the great bulk of the bill was ready to be voted.

Disposition of a motion to substitute the declaration of policy in the Aswell farm bill for that embodied in the McNary-Haugen measure awaited action by the house today.

Is First Challenge
The move, sponsored by Representative Aswell, democrat, Louisiana, constitutes the first challenge to supporters of the McNary-Haugen proposal to make good their plan to send the bill through the house in the form as passed by the senate, as it will go at once to the President.

Chairmen of the McNary-Haugen camp after careful check have indicated that the measure, a margin of fifty votes with which the latter day Aswell and other amendments that opponents are planning to offer.

Attacked by Tilson
Legislation such as proposed in the McNary-Haugen bill leads in the direction of Socialism and enactment of the measure would be a long stride toward that condition, Representative Tilson of Connecticut, republican leader declared in the house today.

"It means," he said, "that a particular class of our people, acting through representatives of their own choosing, are to be clothed with tremendous powers over the very means of life itself, affecting vitally the lives of the whole people."

"I cannot bring myself," he declared, "to believe that the courts will ever sustain such legislation."

Board His Objection
The house leader attacked principally the section of the bill providing for the selection of a board by the President from a list of previously nominated individuals.

This, he contended, clearly restricted the executive's constitutional right to select the members of the government without interference except in the advice and consent of the senate.

Tilson charged that if farm relief legislation fails at this session, those who have been so persistently in the lead in their particular bill or nothing at all, will not be free from blame for the result.

"I do not believe," he declared, "the bill to be a solution of the farm relief problem at all. I believe that in the long run the one who would suffer most from such a law would be the farmer himself."

Charge Bankers Lobby Influenced Senators

Washington, Feb. 17—(AP)—Coincidence with final congressional approval of the McFadden branch banking bill yesterday by the senate, the present consideration in the present session of the bill, a measure of investigation into an alleged banking lobby in Washington.

Immediately after the adoption of the conference report on the bill by a 71 to 15 vote which sends the legislation to the President, Senator Glass, democrat, Virginia, a coauthor of the measure, offered a resolution seeking investigation into reports that a group of bankers favoring the discarded Hull amendments had spent more than $100,000 in maintaining a lobby.

ADMINISTRATION HAS DEFENDER.

The Boston Transcript prints a portrait of Senator Hiram Bingham of Connecticut and labels him, A Defender of the Faith. Under the headline is the comment, "At last a republican senator who refuses to let democratic critics of his party go their way unmolested."

Votes count more than talk in a legislative body, so it has not been an unmixed evil that republican senators under the leadership of Senator Curtis, who works instead of talks, have devoted themselves to the work of the senate, for which they were nominally responsible. Yet, it has seemed that the president and his policies woefully have needed a republican defender on the floor of the senate. In presenting Senator Bingham as that defender, the Transcript says:

"No longer can the democrats and the insurgent republicans criticize President Coolidge and his administration with impunity. Time was when they could say almost anything without the slightest fear of arousing the slumbering regulars on the republican side of the chamber. This has been the situation for a number of years, the minority doing everything it pleased, with the members who were supposed to defend the chief executive and his policies slumping down in their chairs and taking the tongue lashings without a word of protest. But that time has passed."

Senator Bingham has been a college professor, an explorer, a lecturer, and a soldier in command of an aviation instruction center in France. The Transcript correspondent indicates that even among his colleagues who ought to be defending the administration, Bingham has not increased his popularity by stepping to the front and engaging such senators as Borah and Robinson, democratic leader, in battle, but friends of Coolidge out in the nation are likely to look with favor upon him while his associates talk. Custom and precedent demand that the new member shall stand by while the generals and colonels do the fighting, but if they'll not fight, by not give a private a chance? The Transcript tells of the recent encounter of Bingham and Borah:

"They have tied him up in knots on occasions but there have been times when he has embarrassed them. For instance, when Borah was criticizing the president's policy in dealing with the Nicaraguan trouble, Senator Bingham informed him that he had translated the constitution of Nicaragua incorrectly. Senator Borah was inclined to challenge the statement, whereupon Senator Bingham read the constitution first in Spanish and then in English, producing a Spanish-English dictionary to prove his contention. Prove it he did, compelling Senator Borah to change the whole line of his argument. It has been many a day since any member of the senate has done that."

The spirit is willing—but deliver us from the man who has gone in for both radio and golf.

Today's etiquet lesson: Don't say "No," say "Yes, with reservations."

George Washington never told a lie, but then he never had a radio.

A New York legislator would tax all visitors to New York 25 cents a day, to be added to hotel bills. As if the lily were black!

Oregon says the best job for an ex-president of Mexico is farming. You'd think the land down there would be pretty well tilled.

THE TINYMITES

BY HAL COCHRAN

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The small balloons the Tynimies held rose quickly. That's why Coppy yelled, "For goodness sake, hang on real tight. The ground is 'way below. We can't be hurt up in the air. There's nothing here to bring a scare, so let's just keep on floating till we find out where we'll go."

How queer it seemed to float on high, among the clouds up in the sky. A bit of breeze was blowing and the Tynimies picked up speed. They all went swinging to and fro. First very fast, then very slow, 'til finally Coppy's red balloon was blown up in the lead.

And then they started dropping down. Said Coppy, "We are o'er a town. I plainly see some buildings and a steeple and a farm. I wish the wind would get real strong, so we'd rise up where we belong. I fear if we drop lower, we will surely come to harm."

The trip, by now, was getting tough for they had dropped down low enough to have to dodge the trees and things that rose up near their feet. "My goodness me," said Coppy loud, "Supposing we'd fall in that crowd!" The others looked and saw a throng of people in the street. "Oh, well," said Coppy, in disgust, "I wish my old balloon would bust. I'm tired of dodging everything. It makes my bones all ache. Instead of bobbing all around, I'd rather be down on the ground. I'm brave enough to jump, except a lot of bones might break."

And then he got a quick surprise. A steeple rose up toward the skies and Coppy's chance to blow that way while kinning o'er a house. Just as he reached the steeple top he felt his journey quickly stop, and then he found the steeple point had caught him by the blouse.

(The Tynimies have an accident in the next story.)

but I got me some private customers, too."

"Maybe Miss Brainerd wouldn't want the coat, if she knew—" Faith began, blushing uncontrollably. "Knew that it belonged to Cherry Lane Wiley, the jazz musician," Frankel began.

"Whoo, Abe," Garner warned him. "Sure! Excuse it, please, Miss Lane. I'll give you a receipt for the coat, and tomorrow or today maybe I get hold of Miss Brainerd, and make a bargain with her. To you goes one thousand dollars now—whether I sell the coat or not!" he exclaimed, with a large gesture, as if he were conferring upon her the wealth of the Indies.

Faith's heart sank. "Only a thousand," she asked faintly. "It cost thirty-five hundred dollars—" "From a swell Fifth Avenue shop, that made a thousand dollars profit," Frankel shrugged. "And it was new then. Now it is second-hand. Yeah, yeah, I know. It looks so good as new, but it's second-hand, and I'm lucky if I get my money back."

Faith turned appealing to Garner, who nodded slowly. "I think you'd better accept Frankel's offer, Miss Lane. It's really a generous one under the circumstances."

A few minutes later Faith folded

Frankel's check and placed it in her purse. After all, she consoled herself, a thousand dollars was a large sum of money. It would buy food and clothes for the Lane family for months. And there still remained the other suitcases. Stopping swiftly, he lifted the heavy case and opened it on a chair.

"Look!" she cried, hope routing her feeling of humiliation. "This is the wedding dress. Made by a famous Fifth Avenue modiste, to Cherry's order. Of course it's awfully tiny," she depreciated, "but there are a good many tiny girls these days. Isn't it adorable?" she added wistfully, as she held the shimmering satin, embroidered with tiny pearls and rhinestones, against her own tall, splendid figure.

Frankel and Garner handled the exquisite dress almost reverently, looking at each other questioningly from time to time, and uttering little chuckling sounds of admiration. "It's sure a swell dress," Miss Lane said. "And the wedding veil, too! I never seen no prettier in all my life. Wait! I got an idea! No, tomorrow I tell you. Pack these things back up in your suitcase and take 'em back to the hotel with you. Don't let anybody else see them, get me? I got a swell idea!"

As she left the room a little later, Garner was holding Cherry's note between his fingers, while the two men sat close together in conference. Frankel talking in low, excited tones, Garner nodding thoughtfully.

TOMORROW: Faith breaks into the news.

LAST HOME GAME OF SEASON FOR CONFERENCE LEADERS TO BE PLAYED TOMORROW NIGHT

Strong Mt. Morris Five to Furnish Opposi- tion for Locals

Dixon basket ball fans will have their last opportunity of seeing Coach McMaster's undefeated high school quintet in action on the home floor this season tomorrow night, when the greatly improved Mt. Morris aggregation comes for a game, which will be preceded by a contest between the light weight teams of the two high schools.

The coach and his players realize they have one of the hardest battles of the season on their hands for Mt. Morris, flush from winning the Ogle County high school tournament at Polo last week, has expectations of upsetting the dope bucket and handing the Dixon bunch its first defeat of the year. The local lads, who have won eight straight games and who hold undisputed lead of the Rock River conference, were able to beat Mt. Morris in the latter's back yard, 11 to 2, a few weeks ago, Dixon pulled the game out of the fire in the last few seconds of play.

Mounders Stronger.
Since then the Mt. Morris team has improved its play, has been strengthened by the acquisition of some new players and is brim full of confidence. However, Dixon has not been going backwards, that's a cinch, and the local fans can conceive of nothing but a victory for the team, which will send it to Sterling next Friday night with a clean slate for the last game before the district tournament.

The first game tomorrow evening, that between the light weights, will be called at 7:30 o'clock to be followed immediately by the meeting of the main crews of the two schools. A crowd which will tax the capacity of the athletic gymnasium will attend to cheer McMaster's boys to their ninth victory.

Northwestern's 46 to 32 defeat last night was the seventh in a row for the Evanston team.

DELANEY REMAINS FAVORITE IN BIG FIGHT OF FRIDAY

Boston Scrapper Holds Fancy of New York Boxing Critics

New York, Feb. 17—(AP)—Stirred by promise of the most thrilling heavyweight encounter of the season, New York's sport world today talked nothing but "fight" as Jimmy MacLaren and Jack Delaney prepared to pull up training camp stakes and head for the scene of their ten round battle Friday night.

At Madison Square Garden, Tex. Rickard wrestled with the problem of finding room in an arena that seats 18,000 for the 100,000 fans besieging him for tickets.

Speculators were reported on the streets with pasteboards available at fancy quotations. 22 ringside seats were said to be bringing an average of $110 apiece in groups and as high as $150 for a single ticket.

The odds, Delaney stood at 3-2 for victory and 1-3 that the light heavyweight champion would score a knockout.

The smiling Bostonian has caught the interest of the metropolitan enthusiasts with a boxing style of mugging that has overwhelmed his last three opponents here. The picturesque Delaney, perfect ringman with a cool defense and tricky offense that includes one of the most powerful right hands in fistfuffs, has captured the public fancy.

PEOPLE'S COLUMN

HEALTH HINTS
"Thou shalt dress healthfully. Thy body shall be well protected, but no part constricted."

Adopt clothing to change of season and to marked changes in the weather. Always keep the feet dry and warm.

Do not sit or lie scantly covered, or in a draft.

When in perspiration, cover up to cool off.

Inclement weather is harmless if one is adequately clothed. Do not bundle up too much. To do so coddles the body. Feet, ankles and limbs always should be protected against the weather. Bare legs tend to chill the whole body. Any chilliness lowers vitality. Avoid it.

Also avoid constricting any part of the body by means of waist bands, garters, collars, shoes too tightly laced, shoes too small, or pumps that cause the flesh of the back of the foot to puff. Constriction impedes the circulation. The Creator made all human beings to walk with their heels on the ground—not two inches or so above it. High heels throw the body out of natural equilibrium. In the long run extra strain is produced on muscles. And this makes for mal-adjustment of organs and body structures, and consequent "unfeebleness." Imagine men wearing French heels.

"Thou shalt breathe properly. For thy lungs are thy body's ventilators." A man may live weeks without eating, and nights without sleeping; but only a few minutes without breathing. One is compelled to breathe on the average about eighteen times a minute. Over 17 per cent of the solid parts of the body is composed of oxygen. Oxygen is as much a food as is bread.

Some people are literally oxygen starved, and oxygen is obtained only by breathing. Therefore breathe properly.

The total capacity of the lungs is about three hundred cubic inches, but in ordinary breathing we use only about thirty inches. If one does not practice the habit of deep breathing, the lung capacity thus unused will diminish from disuse.

We inhale approximately one cubic inch of oxygen gas in the air each breath. And oxygen is a body builder. Likewise, we exhale about one cubic inch of carbonic gas, and this is a waste product of the body. Now, if we habitually use but one-tenth of the lung capacity, we are habitual shallow breathers and are thus interfering with both the building and the eliminating process of the body. And this lays the foundation for ill health.

To develop and maintain normal lung capacity, these organs need regular deep breathing exercises as much as the muscles of the limbs need exercise in order to maintain their strength. Such exercises should be a routine part of the daily program.

The railroad engine cannot make normal speed if the capacity of the tender for furnishing coal is inadequate. The tender of the engine of the body is the lungs.

At each breath nearly three cubic feet of air are rendered unfit for re-breathing. One can readily calculate the time it will require to spoil all the air in a given room. Hence the value of house ventilation as well as of body ventilation.

Moreover, the Creator designed that pure air be breathed and not air that is saturated with tobacco smoke, as is the case in some offices, halls, living apartments and public vehicles; and also is specifically the case when the smoker "inhales." Always keep the body ventilators supplied with pure air.

"Thou shalt bathe frequently, for in thus doing thou keepest open the million pores of thy skin." The human body is a furnace, continually producing heat.

When in perspiration, cover up to cool off.

Inclement weather is harmless if one is adequately clothed. Do not bundle up too much. To do so coddles the body. Feet, ankles and limbs always should be protected against the weather. Bare legs tend to chill the whole body. Any chilliness lowers vitality. Avoid it.

Also avoid constricting any part of the body by means of waist bands, garters, collars, shoes too tightly laced, shoes too small, or pumps that cause the flesh of the back of the foot to puff. Constriction impedes the circulation. The Creator made all human beings to walk with their heels ing ashes. It is a manufactory, continually furnishing poisons. Many a person is slowly poisoning himself from lack of elimination of these waste products. The skin is one of the great eliminative organs. If its myriad of tiny tube-like pores were placed end to end they would reach some ninety-seven miles; if they were split open and laid side by side they would form a surface of some 10,000 square feet. During twenty-four hours they cast off in perspiration about two pints of water laden with impurities. If the skin is sluggish it can be educated, at least once a week, especially in cold weather, by taking a sweat bath, followed by plenty of soap and a scrub brush. This procedure brings the blood into the skin in abundance and rids the body of waste, and tends also to establish in the skin the habit of elimination. Physical exercise to the point of perspiration tends to do the same thing. And the cold bath, or plunge, or spray, or even a coarse dry towel rub, reflex stimulates all the internal organs and causes them to throw their poisons out into the blood stream to be cast out of the body. A normal skin is warm, smooth, free from rashes or pimples, easily reddens under friction, and perspires readily. Such a skin is a life preserver.

"Thou shalt covet the sunshine, for it is God's great life giving force." We live by the energy derived from food and drink, from oxygen and also from light. In fact, light is as much a food as what we daily eat. The stomach digests the food, the lungs absorb the oxygen and the whole body the light. Sunlight is the source of all energy. Without it life itself would cease. Even food would not grow. We cannot afford, therefore, to neglect this great chief source of life. Dark alleys, dark tenement houses, dark living rooms, dark school rooms, dark work shops, etc., are prolific breeders of ill health.

The ideal life is the sunlight life. There are certain diseases that are best treated by the use of sunlight baths. Exposure to sunlight improves digestion, tones up the nerves, stimulates the circulation, and the respiration, and aids in building up the body generally and in eliminating its wastes. Plan to take a daily meal of sunlight as regularly as you take your other food. Wealth abides in the sunlight.

"Thou shalt not worry. The paths of worry lead but to the grave." Mental attitude and emotion have much to do with health, and also with disease. Worry is a greater menace to health than war.

There are at least three groups of harmful emotional states. Resentment, revenge, wrath and anger control one class; sadness, sorrow, grief, melancholy, and the "blues" are another; while dread, apprehension, worry and fear form the third. Any one of these groups of emotions, if persistently indulged in, is a foundation for physical diseases as truly as are germs. They produce an active poison in the body.

On the other hand, control of the temper, thoughts of happiness and an attitude of optimism are mental attributes that make for health. "A merry heart doeth good like a medicine, but a broken spirit drieth up the bones." Prov. 17:22.

A THREE DAYS
COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

WHY DOESN'T GOD KILL DEVIL? IS THEME OF SERMON

Dr. M. W. Boynton Gave Splendid Address at Baptist Meeting

Why doesn't God kill the devil? The above was the question that Dr. M. W. Boynton dealt with before a large and interested audience in the First Baptist church last night. It was a wonderful meeting, many visitors being present from Amboy and surrounding places. The meetings are increasing in numbers and many are coming to listen in to the brilliant Chicago preacher. Dr. Boynton enjoys the privilege of being the dean of the Baptist preachers of Illinois, having been in his present church for over thirty years. During that time he has been a leader in every great fight for civic, social and national righteousness. Those who come to hear him preach, always learn again and you are certainly turning something if you do not take advantage of this opportunity to hear a truly great man. He spoke at the South Side high school on "Be Not Afraid," and in the North Side high school on "The Possibilities Ahead." Both addresses were listened to with deep interest and much applause by the students.

The doctor based his subject at night on the beautiful story of Eden in the third chapter of Genesis and said that the question we are discussing is not a fool question. It is a perfectly legitimate question. There is nothing too sacred for investigation. The greatest realities of life are in the realm of faith. This wonderful story is true to science and is corroborated by nature. If man had tried to write this story, what a terrible mixup it would have been. The charge, the language of the Bible is King James version and our Bible is doubtless somewhat clarified by the other and newer translations but it cannot be excelled in beauty. All great scholars today are agreed that there is something like the animal in his physical make-up, but he is a special creation by the special act of God. The spirit of man is after the image of God and he, like God, has a moral and spiritual free will which gives him the power of saying "No" to God. "God breathed into his nostrils and man became a living soul."

If man got no opportunity for disobedience there would be no incentive for obedience. Tempting always comes along the line of temptation. There is an incentive of opportunity for obedience and one opportunity for disobedience. There is no positive without a negative. The chance for wickedness is small compared with the good. To be wicked is to be suicidal and the name of the wicked shall not be written in the book of life. The devil and more into the perfect day.

A bully once knocked Sir Isaac Newton and broke his nose and Newton said: "You'll only be remembered in history as the bully who broke Newton's nose." His name has long been forgotten. If God killed the devil, he would be likely to lose you. In olden days, some saints fled to the caves and dens of the mountains to avoid the devil, but they always found him there before them. If you isolate and isolate yourself so that the devil cannot get at you, you will find yourself, not a man, but a machine. Paul had his thorn in the flesh but the Lord did not remove it. He simply gave him grace to bear it. The finest character builder, if you are a temptation without. There is not an evil thing that grows in God's universe. They have been made evil and perverted to evil uses by man. There is no need for law where love rules. You may have rules but you haven't laws. The thing that differentiates man from the brute is his consciousness of growth and his consciousness of falling. It does not matter where we are on life's plane, but it does matter in which direction we are going—whether up or down.

I do not agree with Dante's or Milton's pictures of Hell. James Tissot has a picture of hell which is more true. It shows a great stretch of grey sand stretching away out to the horizon of a grey sky. There is no trace of shrub or tree. Nothing shows of life at all, but a naked man in the foreground, in the attitude of fear, panic, and terror. When you look closely into the picture you see his tracks in every direction. He has isolated himself until now he finds himself alone with self. You go alone after the forbidden tree of knowledge. Hell is to be alone and shut out of the presence of God forever. Christianity and Christ swing in the opposite direction for "He set the solitary in families." He brings us into fellowship with one another.

Tonight the prayer meeting will be held in the east room of the church at 7:30 p. m., and the doctor will preach at 7:30 p. m. Miss Graves will sing. On Friday night at 7:30 p. m., Dr. Boynton is going to give a special address to young people and his subject will be: "What is a Successful Christian?" We have a wonderful message, splendid singing and a great welcome awaiting you at the First Baptist church. Will you come?

HERE'S MY FOOT
GALLANT GUEST to hostess as they walk to the table—and may I sit on your right hand?
HOSTESS: No, I'll have to eat with that. You'd better take a chair—TH-Bits, London.

Charles E. Kartak, mayor and Jim Lewis, postmaster of Birchwood, Alaska, trudged 21 miles to Anchorage to cast the two qualified votes of their district at the last general election.

OUR VILLAGE—COMPTON
I live in a little village
With its beautiful gardens of flowers.

Where the birds sing so sweetly
And here I remain for hours.

This beautiful town of Compton,
With its nature all around,
The people sing so merry
With the green grass on the ground.

The large trees of Compton,
With their leaves of green;
And the birds, that sing, so merry
In their nests, can be seen.

We are living in hopes of cement roads,
To go through, Compton, our little town,
So the people can travel more swiftly
Up hill and down.

This small town of Compton
With two stores and a house or two,
Makes you feel more happy and contented,
With a relief, and say oh my!

North of the rail road track
We have a little red depot,
And in the eastern part of town
There is a church with a steeple.

We have a pebbled dashed school,
In its cupola hangs the bell,
And if the children are late for school
You ought to hear them yell.

Five of our teachers are women,
The other ones are men,
And if we are not good children
We are liable to be tanned.

The people of our village
Are not very different from you,
And the streets of Compton
Are kept pretty clean.

The women wash on Monday
And hang their clothes to dry,
They iron them on Friday
With a relief, and say oh my!

They bake their bread on Wednesday,
On Thursday scrub the floor,
On Saturday go to the store.

The people go to church on Sunday
To hear the preacher preach,
After church is out
The girls all parade the street.

I have something now to tell you
About the people of this town,
It makes me laugh to think of it
As they go up the street and down.

We have a man named Short,
And a short man is he,
We also have a man named Cole
And a bachelor he is to be.

We have people named Cooks
And good cooks are they,
There are also a family of Butlers
Who help each other in every way.

We have a family named Eddys,
And also a family named Pools,
That is where still water runs deep
And where it keeps fresh and cool.

There is a family named Stout

And a stout man is he;
There is also a man named Fox
Who is as sly as a cat could be.

There are two families in our town
By the name of Banks and Hills,
This is where you side on sleds
And take all your skill.

We have a lady named Berry,
And a maiden is she;
There is also a family named Burley
Who are as strong as they can be.

There is also a family named Taylor
Who mend their clothes each day;
There are also some families of Archers,
Who shoot straight, I don't care what you say.

We also have a Jew in town,
Of whom I almost forgot to tell;
His name is Joseph Kaufman,
And all he does is buy and sell.

Now my dear readers, I have told you
Something of our little town,
If you don't believe what I told you,
Come to our village and look around.—L. G. A.

COLLEGE BRIEFS

North Central College, Naperville, Ill.—(AP)—The hard working young man, helping to pay his way through college, has nothing on his students at North Central College here. There are 250 enrolled and 100 are earning the whole or part of their expense.

They wait table, mind children, work in offices and banks, and among other things, several are expert ball players. And no matter how their money is earned, their social standing is not impaired. Some of the most prominent girls socially are earning their own funds.

Augustana College, Rock Island, Ill.—(AP)—Invitations to compete in the first invitational Augustana college girls' basketball tourney have been mailed to more than a score of the leading girls' quintets in western and central states. The meet is open only to independent girls' teams and will be held in the Augustana gymnasium the first week of March.

Lombard College, Galesburg, Ill.—(AP)—Miss Harriet Monroe of Chicago, Editor of Poetry magazine, will be the speaker at the first annual "maxtrix round table" to be sponsored by the Knox chapter of Theta Sigma Phi, women's national journalistic fraternity. Co-eds and a number of Galesburg women have been invited to attend the banquet at which Miss Monroe will speak. The affair will be held the latter part of February, on a date to be determined.

How Far Have You Gotten with Mussy Ointments?

Don't be surprised that suppositories and salves haven't rid you of Piles. The most they can do is bring temporary relief. They never reach the cause—blood stagnation in the local bowel.

Piles can be removed by an operation. Sure! But who wants to submit to the surgeon's knife when a harmless little tablet taken internally can banish the cause of Piles and bring real, lasting and honest-to-goodness relief?

Forget about an operation and stop using salves. Hem-Roid, the internal remedy discovered by Dr. Leonard, is quick and sure. It is so powerful that it is doing for thousands of others or costs nothing.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Death strikes GARRETT FOLSOM while bathing at Ocean Town, N. J. It is thought at first he is a stroke victim, but investigation shows he has been stabbed to death beneath the water.

Folsom's swimming companions had been ROGER NEVILLE, a business partner; MRS. HELEN BARNABY and CARMELITA VALDON. It is established that Folsom, just before his death, had been standing next to NED BARRON, known as the copper king.

ANASTASIA FOLSOM, eccentric and masterful sister of the dead man, arrives and takes command. At the request it is learned that the death weapon was a pichaq, an Oriental knife, and that it had been bought on the boardwalk.

It is also established that one CHADWICK SEARS is a fancier of curious knives. Anastasia engages TITUS RIGGS, an architect, to work on the case. DAN PELTON, the dead man's nephew, arrives, and asks Anastasia if he may have the curious French dolls in Garrett Folsom's room.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXII

"YES, of course," Anastasia said. "Lord knows I don't want them. But where did you hear about the people being so interested?"

"Heard it on the train coming down here," Dan Pelton answered. "On the stage contraption that brought me from the station. In the lobby as I came through. At the desk as I waited to hear from you. The tongues are wagging all around."

"Did you—did they suggest any names?"

"There seem to be names in the air—the Tracys, who are they?"

"Nonsense, they're people who stood by. They only knew Garry slightly, if at all. But gossip means nothing. I have a detective engaged—that is, he's not a detective, but I propose to make him over into one."

"Fine plan!" said the nephew with sarcasm.

"Yes, it is," said Miss Folsom, quite unconcerned at his sneer. "I want you to know him—Riggs is his name. Now, Dan, first of all, if you're going to take these rooms of Garry's—and I think it's a good idea—help me find another suite, for me and Paxton, and you get hold of Ross to help us move."

"Good, auntie. How do I get hold of Ross?"

"The dead man's former valet was summoned, and seemed willing enough to take service for the present with the nephew of his late master."

"We've met before, Mr. Pelton," Ross said, "though not often. And I'm glad to stay here, hoping I may be of some use in helping Miss Folsom find the villain who used that dagger."

"Yes, we're all going to do all we can in that line," Dan agreed, and then they set themselves to the matter of getting more rooms.

"What sort of comments do they make on my uncle, Ross?" Pelton asked, casually, as they were at last by themselves and Ross was unpacking his new master's belongings.

"I declare, the more I see of the Dan Pelton joined his aunt for luncheon and they sat in the public dining room.

"Well, Mr. Pelton, that's a hard question, because I dislike to say hard things of Mr. Folsom, even if they're only the speech of others. But he was not highly spoken of by many, sir."

"Yet few down here knew him."

"More than you'd think, sir. Many a man knew him or knew of him who has only said so since he's gone."

"You liked him, Ross?"

"He was a good master, sir. Strict, indeed, and insistent on his orders being carried out to the letter. But just and fair, and liberal enough."

"In money ways, you mean?"

"That, yes, sir, and also in the matter of time off and vacations and amusements. Whenever he was to be out himself he'd bid me go out for a bit of an outing."

"I see. And you were in bathing the morning he was killed?"

"Yes, sir. I went in soon after he did, and I took care to be out and dressed in time to be here when he came in. Shall you bathe today, sir?"

"No, I think not. I'd like a dip, but I think my aunt would object. You know, Ross, the funeral will be tomorrow."

"Yes, sir, but not exactly a funeral, is it, sir?"

"Not what it would be if we were in Chicago. But I dare say it'll be all the services my poor uncle will have read over him. For my aunt plans to stay here on the job. What do you think about it, Ross? Any idea who did for my uncle?"

"No, Mr. Pelton, I've no idea. Mr. Folsom did have some—well, what I suppose might be called enemies, sir, but they were not down here. I mean men in Chicago, businessmen and such."

DIXON AND ROCK RIVER THEME OF INTRIGUING TALE

Writer in Motor News of Popular Trip Tells of Beauties

Do you know Illinois? Under the heading, "Little Journeys in Illinois," the Chicago Motor Club is publishing a series of articles in Motor News, the magazine of the club, designed to give Illinois motorists a greater knowledge and love of their own state. The first article, written by Marjorie Beem, deals with the Rock River country.

"In 1825, the great stream of travelers, from Peoria to the lead mines at Galena, passed over the Rock river at a place called 'Ogee's Ferry,'" says the article. "Seven years later came John Dixon with a government contract to carry mail from Peoria. He bought from Ogee the ferry and his log cabin, which was the first home in what is now Dixon. The site is now marked by a bronze tablet. Business grew apace. Sometimes a hundred wagons were there waiting to be ferried across."

Outbreak of War
"To the east, not a hundred miles away, Chicago, then a small group of log cabins, struggled valiantly in the mud. Aurora, Grand Detour and other were all neighbors of this growing Dixon. Between these settlements were great prairies and swamps. In winter this meant bitter cold for the unsheltered traveler. In summer, there were swollen, impassable streams, and roads so muddy no vehicle could pass over them. Yet that lusty pioneer life went on. Indian traders came and went, and Indian discontent grew, until finally, in the spring of 1832, driven by despair and starvation, the Kickapoo returned to his old Rock river home, and war was declared on him."

"In front of the little town of Dixon on the north side of the river, were built the small fort and blockhouse, that were to shelter a group of young soldiers, all fated to play dramatic parts in their country's history. Here was Jeff Davis, and his general-to-be Johnston. Here were Zachary Taylor and Winfield Scott, and young Anderson, who was to become Ft. Sumter. And here private Abraham Lincoln was mustered in to become a captain. It is interesting to note that from Gettysburg on, this is the first spot along the Lincoln highway, touched historically by Lincoln."

"Ten miles north of Dixon is a hundred acre tract of magnificent trees called 'The Pines.' This is an ideal spot for tourists who appreciate the grandeur and dignity of such scenery. A small suspension bridge crosses a rocky ravine, flanked with giant pines. Cottages are for rent in this beautiful spot, also."

Tells of Grand Detour
"The village of Grand Detour soon outgrew its neighbor Dixon. John Deere built his first plow here in 1837 and his plow factory made the town grow rapidly. It became the center of life for miles around. A young New York visitor wrote home that she dreaded coming back to old New York after the dances and horseback rides at Grand Detour. Gallant army officers, daring adventurers, brave pioneers gathered there. Then suddenly gaiety fled. The railroad chose Dixon instead of Grand Detour. Deere was forced to move his plow factory to Moline. The fine colonial stone houses were deserted. Some are still standing and well preserved, others have crumbled away, as has the former main street of this town."

"North from the Blackhawk trail, comes of surprising beauty. Here was long ago, a divide, through which the river had to cut its way and here are great central rocks, along its side as a result. Here is Prospect Rock, and the famous Castle Rock, and many others. So we pass hundreds of beautiful camping sites, and arrive at the town of Oregon.

Founding of Oregon
"The founder of Oregon was John Phelps, who wanted to found a city on a beautiful site. The story is that while canoeing slowly up the river, he finally reached high on the bluff, and finally reaching there he met the son of Alexander Hamilton, who was making a preliminary survey of the country. Hamilton had been all over this Rock river country, and it was on his advice that the present site of Oregon was chosen."

"Here come in summer, a company of distinguished artists. The town library houses an art gallery that city might envy. Here is Lorado Taft's famous group, 'The Blind,' and canvases by such artists as Charles Francis Brown, Ralph Clarkson, Sorolla, and many others."

"The famous artists' colony, 'Eagle Nest,' is an interesting place for visitors to see. Hamil Garland gives an interesting glimpse of this colony in his book, 'A Daughter of the Middle Border.' It was here that he wooed and won his wife. Here, on the brow of tall cliffs, are the camps and cottages of all the artists connected with Lorado Taft's colony. Here, also, is the famous Ganyemede Spring, so named because Margaret Fuller was so impressed with the beauty of this spot that she wrote a poem here—'Ganyemede to His Eagle.'"

"A few steps away, on the Wallace Heckman estate, is the mighty concrete statue of Blackhawk, designed by Lorado Taft, and presented by him to the city of Oregon. Blackhawk, wrapped in his blanket, looks sadly out over the wonderful vistas of Rock river."

"Oregon takes good care of its tourists. Homes are hospitable, and several fine hotels are noted for their cooking. The enthusiastic patron of one hotel, had this to say to me: 'I love to go to Oregon for my vacations. The scenery beats anything we can find in the Canadian Rockies. The people there are wonderful. There's only one drawback. The food is so wonderful that some day, when dinner is announced, some one is going to get killed in that rush for the dining room."

Touring in Illinois where the roads are good and where there is no gas tax, is a joy forever.

When the children cough, rub Musterole on their throats and chests. No telling how soon the symptoms may develop into croup, or worse. And then when you're glad you have a jar of Musterole at hand to give prompt relief.

As first aid, Musterole is excellent. Keep a jar ready for instant use.

It is the remedy for adults, too. Relieves sore throat, bronchitis, tonsillitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, chilblains, frosted feet and colds of the chest (it may prevent pneumonia).

To Mothers: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

CORNS

Ends pain at once

No waiting—one minute after you apply Dr. Scholl's Zino-pads the pain is gone. After the corn is healed it never comes back. If new shoes irritate the spot again, a Zino-pad fixes it overnight. Old methods of paring corns, or using caustic acids, are dangerous.

Dr. Scholl's Zino-pads are safe, antiseptic, protective, healing. They stop the cause of corns—rubbing and pressing of shoes. At all druggists and shoe dealers. Cost but a trifle.

Dr. Scholl's Zino-pads
Put one on—the pain is gone!

President of Union No. 62 Quickly Restored to Health

Nervous Indigestion, Loss of Sleep and Run-down Condition, Causes Well-known Chicago Man Much Suffering. Says Tanlac Rescued Him

M. B. Philip, well-to-do property owner, perhaps better known as President of Carpenters Union No. 62, living at 6915 Stewart Avenue, Chicago, says: "When I began taking Tanlac I was always tired, and suffering from loss of sleep. My stomach was so upset that I couldn't eat without suffering from indigestion."

"I followed the advice of a friend and began taking Tanlac. It lived up to its reputation and fulfilled all promises. Quickly my old strength returned. I began to have a great appetite and every night I sleep soundly. Tanlac certainly put me on my feet, and gave me better health and at every opportunity I recommend it to friends and members of my union."

Tanlac usually banishes pain, conquers ailments and builds up strength. It relieves the system of poison caused by constipation and sluggish liver. It is Nature's own remedy made from roots, barks and herbs according to the Tanlac formula.
